Modern Slavery Statement - 2017

Introduction

This statement has been published in accordance with the Modern Slavery Act 2015 (the “Act”). It sets out the steps taken by AmTrust during year ending 31 December 2017 to prevent modern slavery and human trafficking in its business and supply chains. Reporting on these issues allows the public, consumers, employees and investors to know what steps an organisation is taking to tackle modern slavery and have greater confidence in the goods and services that they buy.

This Statement applies to AmTrust International Limited and other entities within the AmTrust group of companies as set out below (collectively AmTrust).

Executive Summary

During 2017, we focused our efforts on the Amtrust entities registered in the UK. A list of Amtrust entities identified in scope of the Act can be found below.

We understand that modern slavery risk is not static and will continue taking actions to mitigate this risk in the year ahead, building on the work already done and including directly engaging our suppliers to do all they can to eradicate it.

We will also assess the effectiveness of the measures taken thus far by reviewing staff training and the measures in place with regard to supply chain due diligence.

During the year, we have conducted a review of the existing policies to ensure that there are references to these risks, where possible.

During 2017, we have:

- Reviewed the risks of modern slavery within our own business. We considered the nature of our business, which is mainly office-based work and the implementation and effectiveness of the policies we have in place to support human rights, as well as controls and procedures embedded in our hiring practices.

- Conducted due diligence on our suppliers.
We have reviewed our procurement procedure, and gathered information from our suppliers to create a central database of our suppliers.
- Contract terms
